NATION'S CHIEF FLYING HOME AS DEATH STRIKES

Physician And Aides Will Go With Chief Executive To Missouri

BULLETIN

GRANDVIEW, Mo., July 26 — Mrs. Martha E. Truman, 94-year-old mother of the President, died today at 12:05 p. m. (EST).

The aged mother of President Truman succumbed after suffering a second relapse from a hip injury suffered several months ago.

WASHINGTON, July 26 — President Truman left Washington national airport at 11:30 a. m. (EST) today to speed to the bedside of his critically ill mother, Mrs. Martha Truman, at Grandview, Mo.

The President received word from the family physician Dr. Joseph Green, at 8:30 a. m., that his mother is losing her long battle for life.

He immediately prepared to leave for the bedside.

THE CHIEF EXECUTIVE talked with Dr. Green and his sister, Mary Jane Truman. They told the president: "Mother Truman is sinking."

The President will be accompanied by his physician Brig. Gen. Wallace Graham. Graham yesterday made arrangements to fly to Missouri this morning upon receiving word that the President's mother was losing ground in her fight against complications caused by the fracture of a right hip last February.

GRAHAM WAS at Grandview a few days ago and Mrs. Truman's condition was "very critical," at that time.

The President also will be accompanied by his secretaries, Matthew Connelly and Charles G. Ross, his naval aide Rear Admiral James F. Pickett and an administrative assistant Charles F. Murphy.

The President will use his old plane, the four-engine Army C-54 which is familiarly known as "The Sacred Cow."

His new DC-6 is in Brazil, having flown Treasury Secretary (Continued on Page Two)

GREEK TROOPS REPULSE REBELS

Casualties Heavy In Battle Called 'Greatest' In Latest Outbreak

ATHENS, July 26—Greek troops and fire-spitting warplanes were credited today with beating back an attack of six insurgent battalions in what was described officially as "the greatest clash between the army and guerrillas" so far.

The attacking Communists suffered upwards of 350 casualties—including 200 killed—when they attacked Grevena, some 30 miles southeast of the embattled Grammos mountains of northern Greece.

The town lies roughly 50 miles from the frontier of Albania, Soviet satellite state from which Athens authorities maintain a recent "invasion" was launched.

LED BY the veteran guerrilla chief Iannoulis, the attacking rebels at one time fought their way to within 30 yards of the army outposts around the town.

In the face of concentrated fire from infantry, artillery and strafing aircraft, the guerrillas—estimated to have numbered between 1,200 and 1,500, including reserve units—broke and fled. On the battlefield, they left 80 dead and 17 wounded. In addition 45 others were captured.

Time and again, the guerrillas attacked, only to be beaten back.

THROUGHOUT the engagement, they reportedly kept four battalions in reserve, but these were forced to retreat under the merciless strafing of government planes.

Army units, with their air support, drove the attackers back into the Pindus mountains 12 miles from Grevena.

Army losses were placed at 10 dead and 17 wounded.

Night Session Fails To Clean Slate In Upper Chamber; House Ready To Quit

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, July 26 — President Truman today signed the Army and Navy unification bill and promptly nominated Secretary of Navy James V. Forrestal to be the nation's first secretary of national defense.

The President signed the unification measure at Washington national airport shortly before he took off to fly to the bedside of his critically ill 94-year-old mother, Mrs. Martha Truman, at Grandview, Mo.

WASHINGTON, July 26 — The senate poured on legislative speed today in a drive to join the house in adjourning the first session of the 80th congress before dark.

The senate began work on a top-heavy schedule of "must" measures following another night session which recessed at 11:20 p. m. EST. The house is ready to quit when the final gavel falls in the upper chamber.

The 80th congress, first Republican national legislature since 1930 when the nation elected a Democratic House and a GOP senate, has been in continuous session for seven months.

Topping the list of "must" measures awaiting final action are five appropriation bills — foreign aid, war department civil functions, agriculture, government corporations and a final deficiency measure.

ACTION ALSO will be taken on resolutions for congressional investigations of high prices of consumer goods and the housing shortage. Further consideration of the resolution to investigate Kansas City vote fraud charges is scheduled. GOP leaders conceded, however, that chances for action (Continued on Page Two)

FRIENDS MOURN JULIUS STONE WHO DIES AT 92

COLUMBUS, O., July 26 — Friends and business associates of Julius F. Stone, industrialist and philanthropist, learned today of the death at his Santa Monica, Cal., home, of the former Ohio State University trustee and benefactor.

The 92-year-old businessman had been in failing health for the last several months.

Stone, who was born in Devils Lake, Mich., was long known in business and banking circles in Columbus. He had moved to California to spend the last years of his retirement.

Stone was engaged in coal mining for 23 years in Ohio and later in West Virginia, Illinois and Iowa. He was chairman of the board of the Seagrave Corporation of Columbus and had also been president of the Columbus McKinnon chain company and the BancOhio Corporation.

The former OSU trustee received an honorary degree in 1938 from the university to which he had given Gibraltar Island, Put-In-Bay, for the establishment of the Franz Theodore Stone laboratory. The lab was founded for research into fresh water aquatic problems.

George A. Stone, Gahanna, and Miss Theodore Stone, Columbus, are among his three surviving sons and two daughters. His widow is the former Miss Edna Andress, who lived near Oberlin.

WOOL BILL PASSES

WASHINGTON, July 26 — Congress sent to the White House today legislation re-establishing a wool price support program in a form believed acceptable to President Truman, who vetoed an earlier measure.

Midwest Support For Dewey Indicated Now

EN ROUTE WITH GOV. DEWEY TO DETROIT, July 26—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York entered the Midwest today amid indications of backing from the sector in which Ohio's Sen. Robert A. Taft has substantial strength.

The governor turned eastward with promises of strong support at the 1948 Republican convention from mountain state delegates.

Dewey met last night with Nebraska GOP leaders who included Lt. Governor Robert Crosby and Mayor George Deny, of North Platte. Their visit gave emphasis to a statement Thursday by U. S. Senator Kenneth Wherry of Nebraska, who said that he believed his party should forget about "favorite sons" and consolidate behind the "strong-

HUGHES PROBES PLAN STRATEGY FOR NEXT WEEK

WASHINGTON, July 26—The Brewster committee called a strategy meeting today on the Howard Hughes aircraft inquiry to review evidence said to include Washington officials other than Interior Secretary Krug among those favored by Hughes' lavish hospitality.

Public hearings of the senate war investigating committee open Monday to find out "how and why" Hughes won forty million dollars in government contracts to build a giant wooden flying boat and a pair of high-speed photo-reconnaissance planes.

In the hands of the committee were alleged expense account vouchers of John Meyer, "missing" publicity man for Hughes aircraft, listing the names of glamour girls hired to "entertain" Washington bigwigs.

Photo-copies of vouchers published by the New York Journal-American and claiming to show that Krug was entertained by Meyer in New York were branded by the cabinet officer as "a swindle of the grossest kind."

LOAN 'RUNNING OUT' DURHAM, Eng., July 26 — British Foreign Secretary Bevin told a convention of coal-miners in Durham today that the three billion 750 million dollar loan from the United States is running out "30 per cent quicker than expected." Bevin said the loan originally was intended to "buy time" until 1949.

FUNERALS FOR MINERS BEGIN

Lewis Leaves Blast Scene Without Comment; Full Probe Promised

WEST FRANKFORT, Ill., July 26—Relatives of the 27 miners who perished in an explosion at the Old Ben coal mine No. 8 near West Frankfort, Ill., began burying their dead today.

Small groups of men and women discussed the disaster in the mining community but there was no public display of bitterness.

United Mine Workers President John L. Lewis, who visited the scene, departed without comment.

THE EAST entry from the main panel of the mine was sealed off on recommendations of state and federal inspectors. Simultaneously, Illinois Gov. Dwight H. Green promised a thorough investigation of the explosion.

Green was among the state, union, and company officials who rushed to the scene after the blast.

An inquest, scheduled for late yesterday, was postponed (Continued on Page Two)

SOLDIERS SEEM WELL FOLLOWING VIGIL IN COLD

DAYTON, O., July 26 — Two soldiers who passed 10 days in 35-below-zero weather of a special Wright Field refrigerator to test rations for Arctic plane crash survivors appeared little worse for the wear today.

The pair still has five days to go in testing special diets before starting a 30-day furlough for their volunteer efforts.

Harold Buffinbarger, Osborn, went into the ice box as a master sergeant and emerged as a first lieutenant. He was commissioned while in the cold chamber.

His companion is Corp. Harlen Plummer, High Point, O. Both wore heavy clothing and fur-lined parkas. They lived on chocolate, cheese and egg-nog bars, gum drops, soluble coffee and water.

BURNS FATAL

COLUMBUS, O., July 26 — Burns suffered in a July 16 garage fire caused the death in a Columbus hospital today of Charles Frecker, 37-year-old garage proprietor. Frecker was a native of Pomeroy.

Long-Secret Lincoln Papers Brighten Record

WASHINGTON, July 26—The image of Abraham Lincoln as an American immortal is brightened and clarified today by disclosure of the 18,000 private papers and state documents kept secret since his murder 82 years ago.

The nation's foremost Lincoln scholars, who spent the night poring over the long-sealed treasure trove of Lincolniana, concurred in this first estimate of the great emancipator's papers.

It appeared that the civil war president's son, Robert Todd Lincoln, who presented the collection to the government, had destroyed all documents reflecting on his father's enemies or revealing family secrets.

THE DOCUMENTS, unsealed at midnight in the library of congress, cast new light on Lincoln as a statesman, a symbol of democracy, and a man of patient, ironic humor and immense natural dignity.

They revealed Lincoln's troubles with members of his cabinet, notably Secretary of State William H. Seward and Secretary of the Treasury Salmon P. Chase.

But they contained, at least in preliminary study, nothing to tarnish the Lincoln legend, nothing to discredit his contemporaries, no hint of secret shadows in his personal life.

Under terms of Robert Lincoln's gift, the data were sealed until 21 years after his death. He died July 26, 1926.

THE COLLECTION included more than 1,200 letters to or about Lincoln's generals, 135 of them involving Gen. Ulysses S. Grant. But there was no indication of discord in any of the letters.

DUTCH CLAIM TAKING OF MORE JAVANESE TOWNS

BATAVIA, July 26—Netherlands forces announced occupation of several more key towns in Java today while Indonesians claimed recapture of at least five places from the Dutch.

Dutch military authorities conceded that their troops are meeting increasing opposition from Indonesian nationalists south of the naval base of Soerabaya.

A communique from Indonesian headquarters at Jogjakarta asserted that street fighting is going on in the north-central port city of Semarang "where Japanese and Moluccans of the Dutch army revolted."

The communique claimed that Republicans repelled a Dutch attack at Pinggit, two miles south of Ambarawa, and recaptured four villages north of the Brantas river in east Java. The Indonesians claimed recapture of Temungang.

However, the documents included written memoranda from Seward and Chase, both powerful political figures driven by burning ambition, declaring in (Continued on Page Two)

PEACE PARLEY BIDS ACCEPTED

Most Nations Ready To Meet With U. S. To Talk Over Jap Pact

WASHINGTON, July 26—Reactions received from all ten powers — including Russia — invited to preliminary talks on the Japanese peace treaty indicated today that they probably will do so though at a date later than originally suggested.

The only discordant note has been struck by the Russian reply, though this was not as belligerent as Moscow radio reports had said. It was interpreted as constituting an alternative proposal, something Moscow often does even in matters where the Soviet Union is basically in accord.

Observers believed there was a good chance that the United States would accept the Russian suggestion that the peace conference be discussed by the ambassadors in Washington of Russia, Britain and China before final plans are made.

IN A NOTE being prepared for dispatch to Moscow, it is believed that while accepting this suggestion, the United States will insist that the unanimity rule—giving Russia the veto—should not apply to this preliminary meeting.

The note also is expected to make clear to Moscow that the United States will not permit the veto to apply when the 11-power meeting is called.

Likewise, the note will make clear that the United States does not feel that the five-power council of foreign ministers set up at Potsdam to draft the European treaties is authorized to draft the Japanese treaty.

JEWISH TEMPLE IN BUENOS AIRES STRUCK BY BOMB

BUENOS AIRES, July 26—The chief Jewish synagogue in Buenos Aires was damaged badly today by the explosion of a powerful bomb in the edifice.

The blast destroyed the front of the structure and also caused serious interior damage. Shopfronts within a radius of 100 yards also were smashed. There were no casualties.

28 PERCENT OF AUTOS CHECKED HERE DEFECTIVE

More than 28 per cent of the automobiles given safety examinations by Circleville police during the first five days of this week had defects it was disclosed Saturday by Police Chief William F. McCrady.

Of the 280 cars checked from Monday through Friday, the police chief said, defects were discovered in 80.

The inspections are being made in connection with the annual state-wide traffic safety campaign, July 1 to 31, with police and state highway patrolmen participating.

Chief McCrady said the defects found in the 80 cars included 11 brakes, 47 stoplights, 17 tail lights, 8 headlights, 4 windshield wipers, and 1 horn.

Owners of the cars were ordered by police to have the necessary repairs and adjustments made immediately.

The purpose of the drive is to reduce traffic accidents.

are hopeless if congress is to adjourn today.

In the session Friday night, the upper chamber passed a bill to continue the sugar allocation and export limitation program for five years beyond Dec. 31.

THE LEGISLATORS will remain away until Jan. 5 unless an international emergency forces their recall for a special session by President Truman or Republican leaders.

House Majority Leader Halleck (R) Ind. predicted that foreign financial assistance would be the No. 1 problem facing congress when it reconvenes next Fall or in January, whether it is the Marshall plan or some other program to aid war-devastated Europe.

Halleck listed passage of the Taft-Hartley labor bill over the President's veto as the No. 1 accomplishment of this session, the first under Republican control in 16 years.

The Republican leader estimated the savings effected by the Republican congress in the cost of government at about four billion dollars and added: "that's not hay".

THE CONGRESSMAN declared that through the workings of the house un-American activities and other actions "we're really getting somewhere in getting rid of Communists in our government." Funds were voted to carry out the President's loyalty program designed to weed out subversive federal workers.

Halleck also listed among the major accomplishments of the session enactment of the ban on postal-to-port pay, unification of the armed forces, effectuation of the reorganization act and submission to the states of a constitutional amendment limiting a president to two terms in office.

In the field of foreign policy, the senate ratified the peace treaties with former enemy nations Italy, Bulgaria, Romania, Austria and Hungary, but took no action on the Anglo-American oil agreement.

Four hundred million dollars from war-devastated nations and another 700 millions for the occupied areas. In addition, congress authorized membership in the United Nations' international refugee organization and the world health organization.

Although joining the IRO, congress failed to take any action on the Stratton bill to admit 100,000 displaced persons from Europe annually for four years.

CONGRESS HEADED the President's request and passed a new succession law making the speaker third in line after the chief executive and the vice president.

Although individual income taxes were not reduced, social security payroll levies were kept at their present level for another two years. Offsetting this, wartime excise taxes slated to expire June 30 were continued indefinitely.

Numerous war controls were ended. Household sugar rationing was ended while congress was considering termination legislation, but industrial rationing was continued. An end was voted Nov. 1 for consumer credit controls. Rent controls will end Feb. 29 unless extended by congress.

Although the preponderant demand was for ending war controls, hundreds were permitted to continue in effect. Export controls were extended to Jan 31 in the wake of demands in congress that shipments of petroleum to Russia be halted.

VETERANS legislation was also acted upon, headed by approval of a bill authorizing some nine million World War II ex-GI's to cash one billion, 850 million dollars in terminal leave bonds. A 20 per cent pension rise by authorities until Monday, pending collection of reports and preliminary investigations.

STATE OFFICIALS told the governor that the blast "probably was due to the accumulation of gas in a non-producing section of the diggings."

Three injured miners at the UMW hospital expressed similar beliefs to Green when he visited them. They suggested that a fall in the old workings sent gas rolling into the main entry and that it was set off by sparks from a motor.

Harold L. Walker, state director of mines and minerals, showed the governor an inspection report of May 29 in which Elmer Edmonds, a state inspector, revealed gas had been detected in the mine 130 times in the previous 60 days.

The governor said the report showed safety laws were being complied with and that the ventilation system was "substantially more than required by state law."

W. L. GRIFFITH IS FOUND DEAD AT WESTERVILLE

Funeral services for Wilbur L. Griffith, 47, Westerville, a native of Ashville and brother of George Griffith of the Circleville firm of Griffith and Martin, will be conducted at 2 p. m. Monday in the Methodist church at Westerville.

Mr. Griffith, who was widely known in athletic circles in central Ohio as an official and who was formerly a coach at Walnut township and New Holland schools and who played football several years ago with the CAC semi-pro team, was found shot to death, Friday, in a garage at the rear of his home. Dr. John H. Richardson, acting coroner, returned a suicide verdict. Mr. Griffith, who was reported to have been in ill health, apparently placed a 16-gauge shotgun against his chest and pulled the trigger. The blast penetrated his heart.

He had been missing from his home since 7 a. m. when he was to have reported at the Kilgore Manufacturing company on a summer truck driving job. His wife, Mrs. Lillian Griffith, became alarmed when she discovered her husband had not taken his lunch with him. She called the factory and learned he had not appeared there. Two Kilgore officials went to the home. Mrs. Griffith informed them her husband's shotgun was gone. They went to the garage and found him slumped on the floor with the shotgun nearby.

Mr. Griffith is survived by his widow, a daughter, Barbara, 18, at home, and the brother in Circleville.

The strong supposition that Robert Lincoln "screened" the collection to prevent any stigma from attaching to the great men of his father's day was supported by the fact that no reference was found to the reported participation of Edwin M. Stanton in the assassination plot.

Stanton was Lincoln's secretary of war. The two are known to have clashed frequently. But the suspicion that Stanton was involved in the conspiracy which resulted in Lincoln's assassination was given to Spanish-American and Civil War veterans.

The house balked however, at enacting senate legislation increasing subsistence allowance for veterans attending school and broadening the automobiles-for-amputees program. Legislation increasing ceilings for on-the-job trainees died in both houses.

Other action by congress included enactment of legislation terminating most construction controls, liquidating selective service, extending the reconstruction finance corp., re-establishing a price support program for wool, setting up a national science foundation, authorizing a commission to study reorganization of the government, and appropriating millions for recess investigations by congressional committees.

MANY MAJOR pieces of legislation were left to be acted upon when congress reconvenes. Heading the agenda in importance is legislation providing for compulsory universal military training which was reported favorably to the house yesterday by its armed services committee.

The house approved expansion of the "Voice of America" program, anti-poll tax legislation and statehood for Hawaii, three items which remained over on the senate agenda for the next session.

No action was taken by either body on financial aid for schools, increased minimum wages, the Wagner-Elender-Taft national housing bill, the St. Lawrence seaway, and a fair employment practices commission, although hearings were held on some of them.

JUST RECEIVED
Car load of Jones' Home Grown Potatoes at McCLARREN'S MARKET, Pickaway & Walnut Streets

tion on April 14, 1865, never has been documented.

THE COLLECTION failed to contain allusion to one of the most remarkable of all American love stories, the romance of the young Lincoln with lovely Ann Rutledge.

The "Bixby letter," which has been called the most poignant letter of condolence ever written, was not found. This was the President's message to a mother whose five sons perished in their country's service during the Civil War.

Lincoln's humor was exemplified in a satirical note, in his own handwriting, commenting on the flood of requests pouring in upon him for commissions in the Union army—with most of those seeking commissions asking for brigadier general rank, at least.

One of the most important results of the opening of the collection was the disclosure that the emancipation proclamation was tremendously popular throughout the North with citizens in all walks of life.

Correspondence was revealed showing that persons of all creeds, colors and stations praised the president for his masterful statement of a great human principle.

MAKING A DREAM COME TRUE

One of the major hopes of every young married couple is ultimately to own their own home. It is a courtship dream, a sacred aspiration. Some couples strive and save for a lifetime without achieving this goal. Some seem to attain the objective with relatively little effort.

home of their own, some choose to buy, others to build. Whether bought or built, the dwelling may become one of two things. It may become a "house", or from the very first day of its original occupancy it may be in the select class, a "home".

A house is where a family goes about living, performing the usual duties of each of its members with little thought of daily thanksgiving for the blessings from their God for the health and well-being enjoyed within the house. There is something lacking in such a house. When the storms of life blow, they beat about such houses and frequently, "great is the fall of them."

The faithful few buy or build a "home". They raise the curtains of their souls and let the Heavenly sunshine radiate within the abode until the affairs of such a family move along with the impetus of love, helpfulness to each other, and, through faith, "the peace which passeth understanding." Which shall be our dwelling place, a "house" or a "home"? Are we going to "go it alone" or are we going to invite Divine guidance to direct the affairs of our family? In the latter case, regular attendance at Church and Sunday School for all members of the family is the first step in the direction of true happiness.

Wisdom Is the Principal Thing

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for July 27 is I Kings 3:5-14; Job 28:12-28; Proverbs 1:1-7, 20-33; 3:13-18; 8:1-9; 9:1-6, 9-10; 16:20; James 1:5. The Memory Verse being Proverbs 16:20, "He that giveth heed unto the word shall find good; And whose trusteth in Jehovah, happy is he.")

TODAY'S LESSON deals with the necessity for wisdom and understanding in life, and the ways of obtaining them. When Solomon, son of King David, came to throne of Israel, he was a very young man, and evidently he felt his responsibilities and wanted, with all his heart, to do what was right for his people.

One night he had a remarkable dream. In this dream the Lord came to him and said, "Ask what I shall give thee." Instead of asking for wealth and fame, as many a man would have done, Solomon told the Lord that he felt like a little child in taking over the throne of his father, David, to whom the Lord had shown great kindness. "I know not how to go out or come in," he said.

"And thy servant is in the midst of Thy people which Thou hast chosen, a great people, that cannot be numbered nor counted for multitude.

"Give therefore Thy servant an understanding heart to judge Thy people, that I may discern between good and bad; for who is able to judge this Thy so great a people?"

The Lord was pleased with Solomon's request, and granted it—and Solomon, as we know, is still referred to as one of the wisest of rulers. Furthermore, as Solomon had not asked for riches and fame for himself, these, too, were given him, the Lord adding, "And if thou wilt walk in My ways, to keep My statutes and My commandments, as they father David did walk, then I will lengthen thy days."

Job Discusses Wisdom

Job, during his great trials, realized the need for wisdom. Said he to his friends, "But where shall wisdom be found? And where is the place of understanding?"

"Man knoweth not the price thereof: neither is it found in the land of the living."

"It cannot be gotten for gold, neither shall silver be weighed for the price thereof. . . . "God understandeth the way thereof, and He knoweth the place thereof. . . . "And unto man He said, Behold, the fear of the Lord, that is wisdom; and to depart from evil is understanding."

Even a little child can understand that to fear evil, to try one's best to be good, and to ask God's help in all things, is good—in fact, is wisdom. The dictionary says: "Wisdom is knowledge practically applied to the best ends; piety."

In his later days, after reigning for many years, Solomon wrote Proverbs out of his own wisdom and understanding.

"To know wisdom and instruction; to perceive the words of understanding; to receive the instruction of wisdom, justice, and judgment, and equity; . . .

"A wise man will hear, and will increase learning; and a man of understanding shall attain unto wisdom counsel."

"The fear of the Lord is the beginning of knowledge; but the beginning of wisdom and instruction."

Wisdom Begets Happiness
"Happy is the man that findeth wisdom, and the man that getteth understanding. For the merchandise of it is better than the merchandise of silver, and the gain thereof than fine gold."

"She is more precious than rubies; and all the things thou canst desire are not to be compared unto her. . . .

"Her ways are ways of pleasantness, and all her paths are peace."

"She is a tree of life to them that lay hold upon her; and happy is every one that retaineth her."

In the 8th chapter of Proverbs wisdom is made to seem a person and to talk directly to men: "Unto you, O men, I call; and my voice is to the sons of man. . . . Receive my instruction, and not silver; and knowledge rather than choice gold. . . . Counsel is mine, and sound wisdom; I am understanding; I have strength."

In his letter of advice to members of the early church, James, the apostle, writes:

"If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him."

VETO PRESIDENTS

PRESIDENT TRUMAN may go down in history for his vetoes. Tax bills, the Taft-Hartley law, the wool tariff, the tide-lands oil bill and earlier measures like the Case labor bill, make a notable list.

Grover Cleveland used to be called the "Veto President" because he wrote "no" more than all Presidents before him combined. These, however, were mostly of private pension bills and like small stuff, not legislation of nationwide significance like that which President Truman has disapproved.

A closer parallel is Andrew Johnson, who rejected reconstruction legislation right and left and repeatedly had it passed over his veto. Historians now believe that Johnson, rather than congress, was right.

Most Presidents have gained popularity by use of the veto power. Congress too often represents local interests and not the national viewpoint. The President, the one official elected on a nationwide basis, often interprets better the public needs.

Anyone who can tell whether President Truman's vetoes will help or hurt him politically, knows in advance the outcome of the 1948 election.

STAYING AT HOME

THERE IS a good deal of favorable comment now about stay-at-home vacations, and there is much to be said for the practice, if the implied procedure and necessary facilities are provided. Such a holiday calls for parks and playgrounds for old and young, adequately equipped and superintended. There is nothing finer in American life than the extent to which park systems have been extended in recent years, and the procedure continues to improve and expand in ways never thought of in former times. Imagine the Pilgrim Fathers, or indeed any group of mature Americans, promoting and maintaining such frivolities a hundred years ago!

This comment is by no means meant to urge a permanent clinging to one spot when there are others available. It is desirable to make occasional forays for a change of scene and more varied human contact, thus enriching the year's experience. But there are times when staying at home is better, and exploring the neighboring resources of park and woodland, historical spots and other interesting spots near home.

Motorists hoping for radically new cars should take it easy. Why should automobile manufacturers introduce new designs when every present car is snapped up the moment it rolls off the assembly line?

An Englishman newly arrived in this country and witnessing his first ball game says he had no idea of the part our Red Indians have in American life.

NEWS BEHIND

THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, July 26—Certain powerful forces seem to be at work to revive old bitterness between internationalists and isolationists. You have seen it creeping into the news. If it is successful, it no doubt will destroy unity on American foreign policy, and thus hardly serve the best interests of the United States at home or abroad.

The movement, of course, is wholly unrealistic. Actually, the thinking people on both sides are so close together in what they want to do, there is little ground left between them to fight over, certainly not enough to warrant losing foreign policy unity.

For instance, a rather full economic plan for international policy was laid forth by Gen. R. E. Wood of Sear Roebuck to the congressional economic committee. It was not reported fully enough to be understood. The board chairman of one of the nation's largest merchandising units is rated as an isolationist, but his experience and position is as a merchandiser. He knows how to sell every consumer item except food and automobiles profitably or he would not be where he is. From that standpoint, he obviously set forth his plan, for there is nothing isolationist in it.

The economic prophets, says Wood, are always wrong. They thought there would be a depression after V-J day, predicting 7 to 9 million unemployed. But we have only voluntary unemployment today, (the word "voluntary" is of his coinage). They are probably as wrong today. The prophets overlooked agriculture. Wood sells to agriculture through 600 stores. Since the close of the war, he says, the farmers have had the highest income in all history, and reserves of over 22 billion in cash and government bonds. There has been no decline in productivity of agriculture.

A decline in farm prices might come if we stopped feeding Europe, but the increase in our population of 40 millions from 1920 to 1950, plus the fact that people are consuming more food, shows clearly our farm prices are not tied to Europe's needs to any critical extent. This comes from a man whose company lives largely from farm income and therefore must be believed.

Wood wants to feed Europe but not invest America there. You can hardly consider it surprising that an American businessman does not consider Europe a good investment. He thinks England, Belgium and Holland are overpopulated; that their people should emigrate; that western Europe has forfeited by failures in place as the testing economic ground for world trends. Whatever we give them, he says, we should not expect to get back. But there is a good place abroad for American investment. He mentioned "the young and growing countries of South and Central America and Canada." Loans to them "if properly applied," he said, "will result in material benefit to those countries and the United States." But loans to Europe cannot really help those countries because they cannot be repaid.

DIET AND HEALTH

It May Not Be Indigestion

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

IT is estimated that about half the people who consult the doctor do so because they think they are suffering from indigestion. What they do not realize is that one out of every five cases of so-called indigestion is due to gallbladder infection and gallstones.

This disorder occurs three times as often among women as among men. Though it may be present much earlier, it usually does not begin to produce symptoms—pain, indigestion and the like—until after the patient is past 40 years of age. However, cases of gallstones have been reported in a child as young as seven.

Severe Symptoms

Gallbladder disease may flare up suddenly with very severe symptoms or it may cause a milder discomfort over long periods of time. When it occurs, the first thing the doctor needs to know is whether or not operation is necessary.

According to Drs. William Bates and D. C. Emenisher of Philadelphia, there are certain symptoms which indicate unmistakably that gallbladder disease is present, and that an operation with removal of the gallbladder is required. These include attacks of biliary colic, which means that there are attacks of unusually severe pain in the right upper part of the abdomen, extending through to the back. Belching, sickness to the stomach and vomiting usually, but not always, accompany the pain, along with chills, fever and an increase in the number of white cells in the blood.

Following the attack there may be some tenderness in the region of the gallbladder, with excessive amounts of gas in the bowel and a feeling of fullness after eating. Of course, when such attacks occur, an X-ray of the gallbladder should be taken which may either show the presence of stones in the gallbladder or that the gallbladder is not working as it should.

A mild form of gallbladder disease is known as acute catarrhal cholecystitis. This is an inflammation of the gallbladder which almost always defies recognition because the symptoms are neither severe nor clear-cut. This condition comes on gradually with some sickness to the stomach, slight fever and some pain in the right upper part of the abdomen. Jaundice, or yellowish-green discoloration of the skin, may or may not be present.

Gallbladder inflammation may be a chronic or long-continued condition. In chronic cholecystitis the gallbladder does not empty itself as it should, and this produces symptoms of indigestion or dyspepsia. This disorder is much more difficult to diagnose than acute inflammation of the gallbladder.

When a person thinks he has indigestion he should, of course, have a careful study made to determine whether or not the condition is due to gallbladder disease. Then either medical or surgical treatment can be carried out. The treatment used depends on the type of gallbladder trouble present.

I have outlined a suggested diet of instructions which may be helpful in following the physician's advice. I shall be glad to send this information to those who write to me, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. Names will not be used.

CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX

HERCULE POIROT, enjoying a mid-morning cup of chocolate, was interrupted by the ringing of the telephone. He got up and lifted the receiver.

"Hello?"

"M. Poirot?"

"Lady Angkatell?"

"How nice of you to know my voice. Am I disturbing you?"

"But not at all. You are. I hope, none the worse for the distressing events of yesterday?"

"No, indeed. Distressing, as you say, but one feels, I find, quite detached. I rang you up to know if you could possibly come over—an imposition, I know, but I am really in great distress..."

"But certainly, Lady Angkatell. Did you mean now?"

"Well, yes, I did mean now. As quickly as you can. That's very sweet of you."

"Not at all. I will come by the woods, then?"

"Oh, of course—the shortest way. Thank you so much, dear M. Poirot."

Pausing only to brush a few specks of dust off the lapels of his coat and to slip on a thin overcoat, Poirot crossed the lane and hurried along the path through the chestnuts. The swimming pool was deserted—the police had finished their work and gone. It looked innocent and peaceful in the soft, misty autumnal light.

Poirot took a quick look into the pavilion. The platinum fox cape, he noted, had been removed. But the six boxes of matches still stood upon the table by the settee. He wondered more than ever about those matches.

"It is not a place to keep matches—here in the damp. One box, for convenience, perhaps—but not six."

He frowned down on the painted iron table. The tray of glasses had been removed. Someone had scribbled with a pencil on the table—a rough design of a nightmarish tree. It pained Hercule Poirot. It offended his tidy mind.

He clicked his tongue, shook his head, and hurried on toward the house, wondering at the reason for this urgent summons.

Lady Angkatell was waiting for him at the French windows and swept him into the empty drawing room.

"It was nice of you to come, M. Poirot."

She clasped his hand warmly.

"Madame, I am at your service."

Lady Angkatell's hands floated out expressively. Her wide beautiful eyes opened.

"You see, it's all so difficult. The inspector person is interviewing, no, questioning—taking a statement—what is the term they use?—Gudgeon. And really, our whole life here depends on Gudgeon, and one does so sympathize with him. Because, naturally, it is terrible for him to be questioned by the police—even Inspector Grange, who I do feel is really nice and probably a family man—boys, I think, and he helps them with Meccano in the evenings—and a wife who has everything spotless but a little over-crowded."

Hercule Poirot blinked as Lady Angkatell developed her imaginary sketch of Inspector Grange's home life.

"By the way his mustache droops," went on Lady Angkatell. "I think that a home that is too spotless might be sometimes depressing—like soap on hospital nurses' faces. Quite a shine! But that is more abroad where things lag behind—in London nursing homes they have lots of powder and really vivid lipstick. But I was saying, M. Poirot, that you really must come to lunch properly when all this ridiculous business is over."

"You are very kind."

"I do not mind the police myself," said Lady Angkatell. "I really find it all quite interesting. Do let me help you in any way I can," I said to Inspector Grange. He seems rather a bewildered sort of person, but methodical.

"Motive seems so important to policemen," she went on. "Talking of hospital nurses just now, I believe that John Christow—a nurse with red hair and an upturned nose—quite attractive. But, of course, it was a long time ago and the police might not be interested. One doesn't really know how much poor Gerda had to put up with. She is the loyal type, don't you think? Or possibly she believes what is told her. I think if one has not a great deal of intelligence, it is wise to do that."

"Quite suddenly, Lady Angkatell, I found the study door and ushered Poirot in, crying brightly, 'Here is M. Poirot.' She swept around him and out, shutting the door. Inspector Grange and Gudgeon were sitting by the desk. A young man with a note-book was in a corner. Gudgeon rose respectfully to his feet.

Poirot hastened into apologies. "I retire immediately. I assure you I had no idea that Lady Angkatell—"

"No, no, you wouldn't have," Grange's mustache looked more pessimistic than ever this morning. Perhaps, thought Poirot, fascinated by Lady Angkatell's recent sketch of Grange, there has been too much cleaning or perhaps a Benares table has been purchased so that the good inspector he really cannot find space to move. Angerily he dismissed these thoughts. Inspector Grange's clean but overcrowded home, his wife, his boys and their addiction to Meccano were all fragments of Lady Angkatell's busy brain.

But the vividness with which they assumed concrete reality interested him. It was quite an accomplishment.

"Sit down, M. Poirot," said Grange. "There's something I want to ask you about, and I've nearly finished here."

He turned his attention back to Gudgeon, who deferentially and almost under protest resumed his seat and turned an expressionless face toward his interlocutor.

"And that's all you can remember?"

"Yes, sir. Everything, sir, was very much as usual. There was no unpleasantness of any kind."

"There's a fur cake thing—out in that summer house by the pool. Which of the ladies did it belong to?"

"Are you referring, sir, to a cape of platinum fox? I noticed it yesterday when I took out the glasses to the pavilion. But it is not the property of anyone in this house, sir."

"It might possibly belong to Miss Gray, sir. Miss Veronica Gray, the motion picture actress."

"Suddenly opening his eyes, Poirot demanded with irresistible curiosity: "Do your boys play with Meccano?"

"Oh, what?" Inspector Grange came back from a frowning reverie to stare at Poirot. "Why, what on earth? As a matter of fact, they're a bit young—but I was thinking of giving Teddy a Meccano set for Christmas? What made you ask?"

Poirot shook his head.

What made Lady Angkatell dangerous, he thought, was the fact that those intuitive wild guesses of hers might often be right. ... With a careless (seemingly careless) word she built up a picture—and if part of the picture was right, wouldn't you, in spite of yourself, believe in the other half of the picture?

"The Authority on Authorities"

PICTURES WITH CARDS

AS A MILLET or Rembrandt paints pictures with a brush, and a Shakespeare or Longfellow creates them with words, so can an artist at the bridge table produce them with cards. In many a situation he can make an opponent see the missing cards as being entirely different from what they actually are. And the mirage he fabricates causes the opponent to act in such a way that results are achieved which would have been impossible except for his artistry.

Following West's lead of the club 8, South saw that he could run six tricks in diamonds, plus two side aces, but had no chance to get the ninth without losing the lead, whereupon the opponents could wreck him with club tricks.

Then a great light dawned on him. Maybe he could make the holder of the spade A think he was blank in diamonds, with the other defender perhaps holding the balance of that suit. Of course, if that were the case, he would require two entries to the dummy to bring in any diamond tricks. Then he saw a way to give exactly that impression, and tried it.

He took the club lead to the Q with the A and immediately returned the spade Q. When East saw that, he decided South was trying to force out the A in order to make the K a dummy entry. East studied before playing to that trick, while South's heart palpitated. Then East reckoned that the club 8 lead from West was probably the "top of nothing," perhaps the 8-7, with South originally holding the A-K-J-9-6, and that West held a bunch of cards in the red suits.

So East finally elected to play the 8 on the spade Q and he made A-J as a tenace over the K. South thereupon ran seven more tricks to make game. Don't argue that East proved himself glibly by his reading which made him fall for the stratagem. The point here is that South could not make his contract unless East would succumb, so he deserved credit for tempting East.

Your Week-End Question
Can you imagine a deal in which a grand slam can be made at any of three suits by one side or the other, and yet, by sane bidding, gets into a small slam in the only suit which cannot produce the grand slam?

One of the earliest recorded uses of stained glass windows occurred when the Bishop of Reims rebuilt the cathedral there in the 10th century.

The minaret is a tall turret used in Saracenic architecture. It contains a staircase, and is divided into several stories, with balconies from which the muezzins summon the Mohammedans to prayer—bells not being permitted in their religion. The minaret is terminated with a spire or ornamental finial.

If You Have Tax Tears Prepare to Shed 'Em Now

Observers See No Relief By Tax Cut Even in 1948

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Legislative experts believe that if the GOP tax reduction bill fails to become law this session and is revived next fall or spring, it will not have much chance of ever being enacted.

The crystal-ball gazers on Capitol Hill agree that the four-billion dollar tax relief measure, which would cut personal income taxes 10.5 to 30 per cent, reached the crest of its congressional strength on its second round through the mill and would poll less support next year.

There is a possibility that the next session of Congress will vote some reduction in taxes in an overall tax adjustment bill. Next year will be a presidential election year, and both Democrats and Republicans would like to throw the voters a little something.

However, with the rivalry between the United States and Russia becoming more intense, and with government costs sure to rise, any out-and-out tax cut bill is almost certain to have tougher sledding in the coming months.

Washington • FLYING DOLLARS—The flying saucers which had the nation's eyeballs popping apparently are mythical, but the aviation industry is seeing flying dollars—the real thing, that is.

The recent increase in congressional appropriations for Navy and Army plane construction means rapid progress in the production of new transonic-type aircraft, and "Brick Bradford" planes more sensational than the famed flying saucers.

Airplane factories are all set to produce flying machines with low aspect ratio wings, swept wings and tails, and jet propulsion refined.

ments.

Jet engine manufacturers are going all-out in anticipation of large orders from the Army and Navy. They are determined to out-strip the Russians, who are said to have accomplished wonders with the ME-262, a German twin-jet fighter.

Republic aircraft is grooming its P-84 for an assault on the world speed record of 623 miles per hour now held by the Lockheed P-50-R. Look for the Republic plane to attempt the record flight at Murco Dry Lake, Cal., within the next six weeks.

GI TRAINING—Some criticism is building up against the GI flight training program, but there is as yet no disposition in Congress to take any action.

Critics assert that the program is not improving veterans' job status in aviation, that some young GIs are wasting their educational rights, that the program is too expensive, and in a few instances has been abused.

Nonetheless, its continuance is assured for at least another year and the Veterans' Administration is expected to pay out $125,000,000 to train some 65,000 veterans to fly a plane in the next 12 months.

Proponents of the program assert that it has stimulated private flying and is helping to keep the country air-minded.

MINE FOREMEN IRKED—You can look for trouble among the coal mine foremen soon. John L. Lewis' new contract didn't take very good care of supervisory workers and they are resentful. One foreman's local already has voted to withdraw from the UMW.

Lewis could not do much on the foremen's issue this time because of the Taft-Hartley law's provision eliminating supervisors from coverage of the Wagner Act.

Lewis did get an agreement, however, with the operators to screen out certain supervisors as eligible for UMW membership, but it may take weeks to get anywhere. In the meantime, the foremen are sore.

In the long run, however, all parties know full well that the operators will not deal with a supervisors' union not affiliated with the UMW and the miners won't work with one. So the foremen ultimately will have to trail along with John L.

Mrs. Ralph Long was hostess Friday afternoon in her home on East Franklin street, for the regular meeting of members of Circleville W.C.T.U. Mrs. Lawrence Warner, president, opened the meeting and presided during the business session. In unison the group read the Crusade psalm.

An editorial concerning the repeal of the liquor law for selling liquor near fair grounds was read by the hostess. She quoted various statements that were made at the W.C.T.U. national convention recently held at Asbury Park, New Jersey. She read in part what Mrs. D. Leigh Colvin, national president said, "one-fourth of the United States is now dry under the local option act. People are getting disgusted with loss of life caused by drunken drivers. Eventually as the revolt spreads, entire states will go dry—ultimately the nation."

Mrs. J. O. Eagleson presented a few of the highlights from the convention. She read excerpts from the "Union Signal", and added a few comments. Mrs. Long served a buffet salad course during the social hours.

Household Hints

Cooks have argued for years as to when to salt and pepper meat, before or after cooking. Cookery scientists say it makes very little difference in results. Add the seasoning when it is convenient. Salt does draw out the juice from meat and for this reason it should not be added until the meat is ready to cook unless the meat is sprinkled with flour after salting.

If you are going to do some spring painting, be sure the surface of the object to be painted is clean and smooth. Remove old paint or varnish in poor condition with paint remover. Smooth rough surfaces with sand paper. Be sure your paint brush is free from loose hairs. Slip the bristles across your hand, dip tip into paint can and brush it back and forth on heavy paper to work out loose hairs.

Dry cleaning fluid will remove chewing gum, candle drippings and dirt from lightly soiled upholstery fabrics, wax from polishing brushes, and old coats of wax that have become impregnated with dirt.

Liquor Restrictions In Fair Area Does Not Affect County

PICKAWAY SHOW TO OPEN AFTER STATUTE DIES

State Authorities Announce Enforcements Of Old Law Up To Local Men

Pickaway County Fair, which is to be staged for four days, Sept. 10-13 at the fair grounds just northeast of Circleville, will be free from restrictions imposed by Ohio's 89-year-old law banning the sale of intoxicants near a County Fair.

However, the state liquor store in Circleville will be closed during the four-day County Fair by order of the state liquor department.

The ancient law forbidding the sale of liquor within two miles of an agricultural fair or exposition will die on Sept. 8—just two days prior to the opening of the Pickaway County Fair.

COLUMBUS law-enforcement officials said Saturday that the old law will be enforced, however, during the 1947 Ohio State Fair to be held there Aug. 23-29 because the law will still be in effect on those dates.

Enforcement of the about-to-die, but still living statute is strictly a problem for local authorities.

Lt. Floyd C. Moon, acting enforcement chief of the state liquor department, outlined that thesis in declaring that the liquor department's concern with the problem would end with closing of its own stores in such areas during fairs.

MOON REMINDED local governments that they receive more than six million dollars annually in permit fee refunds to enforce liquor laws and added:

"The purpose of the legislation nearly a century ago obviously was to give local communities authority to govern and control the sale of liquor in the

Football and Baseball Schools Planned At Park

After several postponements due to rain and floods, the Summer recreation program's summer hunt was held Friday at Ted Lewis park with about 80 children present.

Next week's activities will feature a football school and baseball school. Instructions in the fundamentals of each sport will be given. Football class will meet on Monday and Tuesday at 4 p. m. while the baseball group will meet Wednesday at 2 p. m. and Thursday at 3 p. m.

Friday's special event will be a baseball rodeo which will feature various softball skills. There will be separate events for boys and girls, starting at 2 p. m.

Another Friday event is the badminton tournament at 10 a. m.

OTHER EVENTS listed for next week are a cleanup hunt at 1 p. m. Monday; girls softball Tuesday and Thursday at 2 p. m.; girls handicraft Tuesday and Thursday at 10 a. m.; boys handicraft Monday and Wednesday at 1:30 p. m.

On hot days "keep-out-of-the-sun" games are being featured in the early afternoon hours.

THIS WEEK'S boys softball league was featured by upset victories and a "no-hitter" game vicinity of fairs and agricultural displays.

"Until the date upon which the law becomes ineffective (Sept. 8) that authority will remain with local enforcement officials. It is strictly up to them on a home rule basis."

LIQUOR DIRECTOR Dale Dunifon previously had announced that the state's own stores within a two-mile radius of fairs would be closed during the fairs regardless of action taken by local authorities regarding permit holders.

The last session of the legislature repealed the old statute, but since the measure did not include an emergency clause, it does not take effect until Sept. 8.

MARKS THE SPOT!

Yes—X marks the spot where more than 2,000 people died and over 70,000 were injured last year when automobile drivers challenged the iron horses of the rails—and lost.

When you approach a railroad crossing, you are entering the railroad's right-of-way. To save you from harm, gates are lowered or automatic signalling devices, bells and blinking lights warn of approaching trains. The engineer blows a warning blast, rings his bell. That's the most the railroad can do. The rest is up to you.

The Stop—Look—and Listen sign means what it says. Stop—look both ways—and always listen. If a train is just clearing the crossing, wait—don't hurry across, there may be a hidden train coming from the opposite direction. And when you do cross, keep going. Don't shift gears on the tracks, you may stall.

Take the few extra seconds needed to assure a safe crossing. Don't let X mark the spot where you failed to be careful.

MODERN DEFENSE CONSIDERS THIS TOO!

With America more alert than ever to the need for conserving all resources, it is wise to weigh the hazards of lightning against the modest cost of thoroughly reliable protection.

Lightning can—and often enough does—cause practically total loss of buildings. It can cause temporary shutdowns. Now and then it even takes lives.

Lightning is unpredictable. You never know when it will strike, or with what results. Only two things are certain, lightning starts more fires than almost any other source (records of the National Board of Fire Underwriters prove it) . . . and a West Dodd installation provides a thoroughly reliable safeguard. The sense of security alone is well worth the cost.

West Dodd is the oldest name in lightning protection. Its materials and methods of installation are approved by the National Board of Fire Underwriters, the American Institute of Electrical Engineers. They are being widely used on National defense projects such as powder magazines, ammunition loading lines and igloos.

Why not at least investigate West Dodd systems? Details on request.

President Truman's Mother Dies In Missouri

FIVE MEASURES ON 'MUST' LIST OF LAST DAY

Night Session Fails To Clean Slate In Upper Chamber; House Ready To Quit

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, July 26—President Truman today signed the Army and Navy unification bill and promptly nominated Secretary of Navy James V. Forrestal to be the nation's first secretary of national defense.

The President signed the unification measure at Washington national airport shortly before he took off to fly to the bedside of his critically ill 94-year-old mother, Mrs. Martha Truman, at Grandview, Mo.

WASHINGTON, July 26—The senate poured on legislative speed today in a drive to join the house in adjourning the first session of the 80th congress before dark.

The senate began work on a top-heavy schedule of "must" measures following another night session which recessed at 11:20 p. m. EST. The house is ready to quit when the final gavel falls in the upper chamber.

The 80th congress, first Republican national legislature since 1930 when the nation elected a Democratic House and a GOP senate, has been in continuous session for seven months.

Topping the list of "must" measures awaiting final action are five appropriation bills—foreign aid, war department civil functions, agriculture, government corporations and a final deficiency measure.

ACTION ALSO will be taken on resolutions for congressional investigations of high prices of consumer goods and the housing shortage.

FRIENDS MOURN JULIUS STONE WHO DIES AT 92

COLUMBUS, O., July 26—Friends and business associates of Julius F. Stone, industrialist and philanthropist, learned today of the death at his Santa Monica, Cal., home, of the former Ohio State University trustee and benefactor.

The 92-year-old businessman had been in failing health for the last several months.

Stone, who was born in Devils Lake, Mich., was long known in business and banking circles in Columbus. He had moved to California to spend the last years of his retirement.

Stone was engaged in coal mining for 23 years in Ohio and later in West Virginia, Illinois and Iowa.

He was chairman of the board of the Seagrave Corporation of Columbus and had also been president of the Columbus McKinnon chain company and the BancOhio Corporation.

The former OSU trustee received an honorary degree in 1938 from the university to which he had given Gibraltar Island, Put-In-Bay, for the establishment of the Franz Theodore Stone laboratory. The lab was founded for research into fresh water aquatic problems.

George A. Stone, Gahanna, and Miss Theodore Stone, Columbus, are among his three surviving sons and two daughters. His widow is the former Miss Edna Andress, who lived near Oberlin.

GREEK TROOPS REPULSE REBELS

Casualties Heavy In Battle Called 'Greatest' In Latest Outbreak

ATHENS, July 26—Greek troops and fire-spitting warplanes were credited today with beating back an attack of six insurgent battalions in what was described officially as "the greatest clash between the army and guerrillas" so far.

The attacking Communists suffered upwards of 350 casualties—including 200 killed—when they attacked Grevena, some 30 miles southeast of the embattled Grammos mountains of northern Greece.

The town lies roughly 50 miles from the frontier of Albania, Soviet satellite state from which Athens authorities maintain a recent "invasion" was launched.

LED BY the veteran guerrilla chief Iannoulis, the attacking rebels at one time fought their way to within 30 yards of the army outposts around the town.

In the face of concentrated fire from infantry, artillery and strafing aircraft, the guerrillas—estimated to have numbered between 1,200 and 1,500, including reserve units—broke and fled. On the battlefield, they left 80 dead and 17 wounded. In addition 45 others were captured.

Time and again, the guerrillas attacked, only to be beaten back.

THROUGHOUT the engagement, they reportedly kept four battalions in reserve, but these were forced to retreat under the merciless strafing of government planes.

Army units, with their air support, drove the attackers back into the Pindus mountains 12 miles from Grevena.

Army losses were placed at 10 dead and 17 wounded.

NATION'S CHIEF FLYING HOME AS DEATH STRIKES

Physician And Aides Will Go With Chief Executive To Missouri

BULLETIN

GRANDVIEW, Mo., July 26—Mrs. Martha E. Truman, 94-year-old mother of the President, died today at 12:05 p. m. (EST).

The aged mother of President Truman succumbed after suffering a second relapse from a hip injury suffered several months ago.

WASHINGTON, July 26—President Truman left Washington national airport at 11:30 a. m. (EST) today to speed to the bedside of his critically ill mother, Mrs. Martha Truman, at Grandview, Mo.

The President received word from the family physician Dr. Joseph Green, at 8:30 a. m., that his mother is losing her long battle for life.

He immediately prepared to leave for the bedside.

GRAHAM WAS at Grandview a few days ago and Mrs. Truman's condition was "very critical," at that time.

The President also will be accompanied by his secretaries, Matthew Connelly and Charles G. Ross, his naval aide Rear Admiral James Foskett and an administrative assistant Charles F. Murphy.

Chief McCrady said the defects found in the 80 cars included 11 brakes, 47 stoplights, 17 tail lights, 8 headlights, 4 windshield wipers, and 1 horn.

Owners of the cars were ordered by police to have the necessary repairs and adjustments made immediately.

The purpose of the drive is to reduce traffic accidents.

Long-Secret Lincoln Papers Brighten Record

WASHINGTON, July 26—The image of Abraham Lincoln as an American immortal is brightened and clarified today by disclosure of the 18,000 private papers and state documents kept secret since his murder 82 years ago.

The nation's foremost Lincoln scholars, who spent the night poring over the long-sealed treasure trove of Lincolniana, concurred in this first estimate of the great emancipator's papers.

It appeared that the civil war president's son, Robert Todd Lincoln, who presented the collection to the government, had destroyed all documents reflecting on his father's enemies or revealing family secrets.

THE DOCUMENTS, unsealed at midnight in the library of congress, cast new light on Lincoln as a statesman, a symbol of democracy, and a man of patient, ironic humor and immense natural dignity.

They revealed Lincoln's troubles with members of his cabinet, notably Secretary of State William H. Seward and Secretary of the Treasury Salmon P. Chase.

But they contained, at least in preliminary study, nothing to tarnish the Lincoln legend, nothing to discredit his contemporaries, no hint of secret shadows in his personal life.

Under terms of Robert Lincoln's gift, the data were sealed until 21 years after his death. He died July 26, 1926.

THE COLLECTION included more than 1,200 letters to or about Lincoln's generals, 135 of them involving Gen. Ulysses S. Grant. But there was no indication of discord in any of the letters.

DUTCH CLAIM TAKING OF MORE JAVANESE TOWNS

BATAVIA, July 26—Netherlands forces announced occupation of several more key towns in Java today while Indonesians claimed recapture of at least five places from the Dutch.

Dutch military authorities conceded that their troops are meeting increasing opposition from Indonesian nationalists south of the naval base of Soerabaya.

A communique from Indonesian headquarters at Jogjakarta asserted that street fighting is going on in the north-central port city of Semarang "where Japanese and Moluccans of the Dutch army revolted."

The communique claimed that Republicans repelled a Dutch attack at Pinggit, two miles south of Ambarawa, and recaptured four villages north of the Brantas river in east Java. The Indonesians claimed recapture of Temungang.

JEWISH TEMPLE IN BUENOS AIRES STRUCK BY BOMB

BUENOS AIRES, July 26—The chief Jewish synagogue in Buenos Aires was damaged badly today by the explosion of a powerful bomb in the edifice.

The blast destroyed the front of the structure and also caused serious interior damage. Shopfronts within a radius of 100 yards also were smashed. There were no casualties.

FAMILIES AND FRIENDS of 27 coal miners killed in mine explosion at West Frankfort, Ill., keep vigil at mine entrance as bodies are brought to surface.

Midwest Support For FUNERALS FOR DEWEY Indicated Now MINERS BEGIN

EN ROUTE WITH GOV. DEWEY TO DETROIT, July 26—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York entered the Midwest today amid indications of backing from the sector in which Ohio's Sen. Robert A. Taft has substantial strength.

The governor turned eastward with promises of strong support at the 1948 Republican convention from mountain state delegates.

Dewey met last night with Nebraska GOP leaders who included Lt. Governor Robert Crosby and Mayor George Deny, of North Platte. Their visit gave emphasis to a statement Thursday by U. S. Senator Kenneth Wherry of Nebraska, who said that he believed his party should forget about "favorite sons" and consolidate behind the "strongest candidate the Republicans can present."

IN THE MIDWEST, northwest and southwest areas Dewey could count on support from states such as Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Arkansas, Idaho, Nevada, Wyoming, Washington, Montana, and Utah.

These states figure up to 400 delegates, which, although, short of a first ballot majority, give the New Yorker an enormous start at the 1948 convention.

In addition, Dewey can count on substantial second ballot support from some of the states which will cast their votes on the first ballot for their favorite sons.

The lack of a concentrated movement for Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, largely because the chief of staff has not indicated that he is interested in the nomination, also has aided Dewey.

DEWEY, who was due in Detroit at 7:05 p. m. (EST), will spend the night there, probably talking with Michigan Republicans. He is expected to visit his native city of Owosso, Mich., tomorrow where he will visit his mother for several days.

Some Dewey supporters privately have expressed the belief that Dewey easily would outdistance Taft, if he announced his candidacy. This thought was bolstered by what they considered to be surprisingly little Taft sentiment during the western tour.

COLUMBUS BOY DIES IN CRASH NEAR LANCASTER

LANCASTER, O., July 26—A Columbus youth was killed early today and another was injured when their car struck a bridge on US 33 four miles south of Lancaster.

The state highway patrol identified the dead youth as Richard Syx, 18, Otis Parsons, 26, was taken to Lancaster city hospital with abrasions of the face and a possible fractured shoulder. His condition was listed as not serious.

Authorities said that the vehicle crashed into the bridge when Syx apparently fell asleep at the wheel. They said he had died of a broken neck.

Lewis Leaves Blast Scene Without Comment; Full Probe Promised

WEST FRANKFORT, Ill., July 26—Relatives of the 27 miners who perished in an explosion at the Old Ben coal mine No. 8 near West Frankfort, Ill., began burying their dead today.

Small groups of men and women discussed the disaster in the mining community but there was no public display of bitterness.

United Mine Workers President John L. Lewis, who visited the scene, departed without comment.

THE EAST entry from the main panel of the mine was sealed off on recommendations of state and federal inspectors. Simultaneously, Illinois Gov. Dwight H. Green promised a thorough investigation of the explosion.

Green was among the state, union, and company officials who rushed to the scene after the blast.

An inquest, scheduled for late yesterday, was postponed (Continued on Page Two)

Harold Buffinbarger, Osborn, went into the ice box as a master sergeant and emerged as a first lieutenant. He was commissioned while in the cold chamber.

His companion is Corp. Harlen Plummer, High Point, O. Both wore heavy clothing and fur-lined parkas. They lived on chocolate, cheese and egg-nog bars, gum drops, soluble coffee and water.

BURNS FATAL

COLUMBUS, O., July 26—Burns suffered in a July 16 garage fire caused the death in a Columbus hospital today of Charles Frecker, 37-year-old garage proprietor. Frecker was a native of Pomeroy.

FIVE MEASURES ON 'MUST' LIST OF LAST DAY

are hopeless if congress is to adjourn today.

In the session Friday night, the upper chamber passed a bill to continue the sugar allocation and export limitation program for five years beyond Dec. 31.

THE LEGISLATORS will remain away until Jan. 5 unless an international emergency forces their recall for a special session by President Truman or Republican leaders.

House Majority Leader Halleck (R) Ind. predicted that foreign financial assistance would be the No. 1 problem facing congress when it reconvenes next Fall or in January, whether it is the Marshall plan or some other program to aid war-devastated Europe.

Halleck listed passage of the Taft-Hartley labor bill over the President's veto as the No. 1 accomplishment of this session, the first under Republican control in 16 years.

The Republican leader estimated the savings effected by the Republican congress in the cost of government at about four billion dollars and added: "that's not hay".

THE CONGRESSMAN declared that through the workings of the house un-American activities and other actions "we're really getting somewhere in getting rid of Communists in our government." Funds were voted to carry out the President's loyalty program designed to weed out subversive federal workers.

Halleck also listed among the major accomplishments of the session enactment of the ban on postal-to-portal pay, unification of the armed forces, effectuation of the reorganization act and submission to the states of a constitutional amendment limiting a president to two terms in office.

In the field of foreign policy, the senate ratified the peace treaties with former enemy nations Italy, Bulgaria, Romania, Austria and Hungary, but took no action on the Anglo-American oil agreement.

Four hundred million dollars from war-devastated nations and another 700 millions for the occupied areas. In addition, congress authorized membership in the United Nations' international refugee organization and the world health organization.

Although joining the IRO, congress failed to take any action on the Stratton bill to admit 100,000 displaced persons from Europe annually for four years.

CONGRESS HEADED the President's request and passed a new succession law making the speaker third in line after the chief executive and the vice president.

Although individual income taxes were not reduced, social security payroll levies were kept at their present level for another two years. Offsetting this, wartime excise taxes slated to expire June 30 were continued indefinitely.

Numerous war controls were ended. Household sugar rationing was ended while congress was considering termination legislation, but industrial rationing was continued. An end was voted Nov. 1 for consumer credit controls. Rent controls will end Feb. 29 unless extended by congress.

Although the preponderant demand was for ending war controls, hundreds were permitted to continue in effect. Export controls were extended to Jan 31 in the wake of demands in congress that shipments of petroleum to Russia be halted.

VETERANS legislation was also acted upon, headed by approval of a bill authorizing some nine million World War II ex-GI's to cash one billion, 850 million dollars in terminal leave bonds. A 20 per cent pension rise tention of leaving the cabinet.

The strong supposition that Robert Lincoln "screened" the collection to prevent any stigma from attaching to the great men of his father's day was supported by the fact that no reference was found to the reported participation of Edwin M. Stanton in the assassination plot.

Stanton was Lincoln's secretary of war. The two are known to have clashed frequently. But the suspicion that Stanton was involved in the conspiracy which resulted in Lincoln's assassination was given to Spanish-American and Civil War veterans.

The house balked however, at enacting senate legislation increasing subsistence allowance for veterans attending school and broadening the automobile-for-amputees program. Legislation increasing ceilings for on-the-job trainees died in both houses.

Other action by congress included enactment of legislation terminating most construction controls, liquidating selective service, extending the reconstruction finance corp., re-establishing a price support program for wool, setting up a national science foundation, authorizing a commission to study reorganization of the government, and appropriating millions for recess investigations by congressional committees.

MANY MAJOR pieces of legislation were left to be acted upon when congress reconvenes. Heading the agenda in importance is legislation providing for compulsory universal military training which was reported favorably to the house yesterday by its armed services committee.

The house approved expansion of the "Voice of America" program, anti-poll tax legislation and statehood for Hawaii, three items which remained over on the senate agenda for the next session.

No action was taken by either body on financial aid for schools, increased minimum wages, the Wagner-Elliander-Taft national housing bill, the St. Lawrence seaway, and a fair employment practices commission, although hearings were held on some of them.

by authorities until Monday, pending collection of reports and preliminary investigations.

STATE OFFICIALS told the governor that the blast "probably was due to the accumulation of gas in a non-producing section of the diggings."

Three injured miners at the UMW hospital expressed similar beliefs to Green when he visited them. They suggested that a fall in the old workings sent gas rolling into the main entry and that it was set off by sparks from a motor.

Harold L. Walker, state director of mines and minerals, showed the governor an inspection report of May 29 in which Elmer Edmonds, a state inspector, revealed gas had been detected in the mine 130 times in the previous 60 days.

The governor said the report showed safety laws were being complied with and that the ventilation system was "substantially more than required by state law."

W. L. GRIFFITH IS FOUND DEAD AT WESTERVILLE

Funeral services for Wilbur L. Griffith, 47, Westerville, a native of Ashville and brother of George Griffith of the Circleville firm of Griffith and Martin, will be conducted at 2 p. m. Monday in the Methodist church at Westerville.

Mr. Griffith, who was widely known in athletic circles in central Ohio as an official and who was formerly a coach at Walnut township and New Holland schools and who played football several years ago with the CAC semi-pro team, was found shot to death, Friday, in a garage at the rear of his home. Dr. John H. Richardson, acting coroner, returned a suicide verdict. Mr. Griffith, who was reported to have been in ill health, apparently placed a 16-gauge shotgun against his chest and pulled the trigger. The blast penetrated his heart.

He had been missing from his home since 7 a. m. when he was to have reported at the Kilgore Manufacturing company on a summer truck driving job. His wife, Mrs. Lillian Griffith, became alarmed when she discovered her husband had not taken his lunch with him. She called the factory and learned he had not appeared there. Two Kilgore officials went to the home. Mrs. Griffith informed them her husband's shotgun was gone. They went to the garage and found him slumped on the floor with the shotgun nearby.

Mr. Griffith is survived by his widow, a daughter, Barbara, 18, at home, and the brother in Circleville.

THE PRESIDENT spent an anxious 12-day vigil at his mother's bedside two months ago when her illness reached a critical stage and there was little hope for her survival.

However, she fought a winning battle against great odds, and the President was able to return to Washington reassured after his long vigil.

Mr. Truman returned there a few days later to attend the reunion of his old World War I division, the 35th. His mother's condition was so good at that time that on several occasions she was able to get out of bed and spend several hours sitting up in her favorite rocking chair.

MAKING A DREAM COME TRUE

One of the major hopes of every young married couple is ultimately to own their own home. It is a courtship dream, a sacred aspiration. Some couples strive and save for a lifetime without achieving this goal. Some seem to attain the objective with relatively little effort.

Among those whose good fortune it becomes to own a home of their own, some choose to buy, others to build. Whether bought or built, the dwelling may become one of two things. It may become or remain a "house", or from the very first day of its original occupancy it may be in the select class, a "home".

A house is where a family goes about living, performing the usual duties of each of its members with little thought of daily thanksgiving for the blessings from their God for the health and well-being enjoyed within the house. There is something lacking in such a house. When the storms of life blow, they beat about such houses and frequently, "great is the fall of them."

The faithful few buy or build a "home". They raise the curtains of their souls and let the Heavenly sunshine radiate within the abode until the affairs of such a family move along with the impetus of love, helpfulness to each other, and through faith, "the peace which passeth understanding." Which shall be our dwelling place, a "house" or a "home"? Are we going to "go it alone" or are we going to invite Divine guidance to direct the affairs of our family? In the latter case, regular attendance at Church and Sunday School for all members of the family is the first step in the direction of true happiness.

Wisdom Is the Principal Thing

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for July 27 is 1 Kings 3:5-14; Job 28:12-28; Proverbs 1:1-7, 20-33; 3:13-18; 8:1-6, 9-10; 16:20; James 1:5. The Memory Verse being Proverbs 16:20, "He that giveth heed unto the word shall find good: And whose trusteth in Jehovah, happy is he.")

TODAY'S LESSON deals with the necessity for wisdom and understanding in life, and the ways of obtaining them. When Solomon, son of King David, came to throne of Israel, he was a very young man, and evidently he felt his responsibilities and wanted, with all his heart, to do what was right for his people.

One night he had a remarkable dream. In this dream the Lord came to him and said, "Ask what I shall give thee. Instead of asking for wealth and fame, as many a man would have done, Solomon told the Lord that he felt like a little child in taking over the throne of his father, David, to whom the Lord had shown great kindness. 'I know not how to go out or come in,' he said.

"And thy servant is in the midst of Thy people which Thou hast chosen, a great people, that cannot be numbered nor counted for multitude.

"Give therefore Thy servant an understanding heart to judge Thy people, that I may discern between good and bad; for who is able to judge this Thy so great a people?"

The Lord was pleased with Solomon's request, and granted it—and Solomon, as we know, is still referred to as one of the wisest of rulers. Furthermore, as Solomon had not asked for riches and fame for himself, these, too, were given him, the Lord adding, "And if thou wilt walk in My ways, to keep My statutes and My commandments, as thy father David did walk, then I will lengthen thy days."

Job Discusses Wisdom

Job, during his great trials, realized the need for wisdom. Said he to his friends, "But where shall wisdom be found? and where is the place of understanding? Man knoweth not the price thereof; neither is it found in the land of the living. It cannot be gotten for gold, neither shall silver be weighed for the price thereof. . . . "God understandeth the way thereof, and He knoweth the place thereof. . . . "And unto man He said, Behold, the fear of the Lord, that is wisdom; and to depart from evil is understanding."

Even a little child can understand that to fear evil, to try one's best to be good, and to ask God's help in all things, is good—in fact, is wisdom. The dictionary says: "Wisdom is knowledge practically applied to the best ends; . . . piety."

In his later days, after reigning for many years, Solomon wrote Proverbs out of his own wisdom and understanding.

"To know wisdom and instruction; to perceive the words of understanding;

"To receive the instruction of wisdom, justice, and judgment, and equity; . . .

"A wise man will hear, and will increase his learning; and a man of understanding shall attain unto wise counsels:

"The fear of the Lord is the beginning of knowledge; but fools despise wisdom and instruction."

Wisdom Begets Happiness

"Happy is the man that findeth wisdom, and the man that getteth understanding. For the merchandise of it is better than the merchandise of silver, and the gain thereof than fine gold.

"She is more precious than rubies; and all the things thou canst desire are not to be compared unto her. . . .

"Her ways are ways of pleasantness, and all her paths are peace.

"She is a tree of life to them that lay hold upon her; and happy is every one that retaineth her."

In the 8th chapter of Proverbs wisdom is made to seem a person and to talk directly to men: "Unto you, O men, I call; and my voice is to the sons of man. . . . Receive my instruction, and not silver; and knowledge rather than choice gold. . . . Counsel is mine, and sound wisdom; I am understanding; I have strength."

In his letter of advice to members of the early church, James, the apostle, writes:

"If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him."

VETO PRESIDENTS

PRESIDENT TRUMAN may go down in history for his vetoes. Tax bills, the Taft-Hartley law, the wool tariff, the tide-lands oil bill and earlier measures like the Case labor bill, make a notable list.

Grover Cleveland used to be called the "Veto President" because he wrote "no" more than all Presidents before him combined. These, however, were mostly of private pension bills and like small stuff, not legislation of nationwide significance like that which President Truman has disapproved.

A closer parallel is Andrew Johnson, who rejected reconstruction legislation right and left and repeatedly had it passed over his veto. Historians now believe that Johnson, rather than congress, was right.

Most Presidents have gained popularity by use of the veto power. Congress too often represents local interests and not the national viewpoint. The President, the one official elected on a nationwide basis, often interprets better the public needs.

Anyone who can tell whether President Truman's vetoes will help or hurt him politically, knows in advance the outcome of the 1948 election.

STAYING AT HOME

THERE IS a good deal of favorable comment now about stay-at-home vacations, and there is much to be said for the practice, if the implied procedure and necessary facilities are provided. Such a holiday calls for parks and playgrounds for old and young, adequately equipped and superintended. There is nothing finer in American life than the extent to which park systems have been extended in recent years, and the procedure continues to improve and expand in ways never thought of in former times. Imagine the Pilgrim Fathers, or indeed any group of mature Americans, promoting and maintaining such frivolities a hundred years ago!

This comment is by no means meant to urge a permanent clinging to one spot when there are others available. It is desirable to make occasional forays for a change of scene and more varied human contact, thus enriching the year's experience. But there are times when staying at home is better, and exploring the neighboring resources of park and woodland, historical spots and other interesting spots near home.

Observers See No Relief
By Tax Cut Even in 1948

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Legislative experts believe that if the GOP tax reduction bill fails to become law this session and is revived next fall or spring, it will not have much chance of ever being enacted.

The crystal-ball gazers on Capitol Hill agree that the four-billion dollar tax relief measure, which would cut personal income taxes 10.5 to 30 per cent, reached the crest of its congressional strength on its second round through the mill and would poll less support next year.

There is a possibility that the next session of Congress will vote some reduction in taxes in an overall tax adjustment bill. Next year will be a presidential election year, and both Democrats and Republicans would like to throw the voters a little something.

However, with the rivalry between the United States and Russia becoming more intense, and with government costs sure to rise, any out-and-out tax cut bill is almost certain to have tougher sledding in the coming months.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, July 26—Certain powerful forces seem to be at work to revive old bitterness between internationalists and isolationists. You have seen it creeping into the news. If it is successful, it no doubt will destroy unity on American foreign policy, and thus hardly serve the best interests of the United States at home or abroad.

The movement, of course, is wholly unrealistic. Actually, the thinking people on both sides are so close together in what they want to do, there is little ground left between them to fight over, certainly not enough to warrant losing foreign policy unity.

For instance, a rather full economic plan for international policy was laid forth by Gen. R. E. Wood of Sear Roebuck to the congressional economic committee. It was not reported fully enough to be understood. The board chairman of one of the nation's largest merchandising units is rated as an isolationist, but his experience and position is as a merchandiser. He knows how to sell every consumer item except food and automobiles profitably or he would not be where he is. From that standpoint, he obviously set forth his plan, for there is nothing isolationist in it.

The economic prophets, says Wood, are always wrong. They thought there would be a depression after V-J day, predicting 7 to 9 million unemployed. But we have only voluntary unemployment today, (the word "voluntary" is of his coinage). They are probably as wrong today. The prophets overlooked agriculture. Wood sells to agriculture through 600 stores. Since the close of the war, he says, the farmers have had the highest income in all history, and reserves of over 22 billion in cash and government bonds. There has been no decline in productivity of agriculture.

A decline in farm prices might come if we stopped feeding Europe, but the increase in our population of 40 millions from 1920 to 1950, plus the fact that people are consuming more food, shows clearly our farm prices are not tied to Europe's needs to any critical extent. This comes from a man whose company lives largely from farm income and therefore must be believed.

Wood wants to feed Europe but not invest America there. You can hardly consider it surprising that an American business man does not consider Europe a good investment. He thinks England, Belgium and Holland are overpopulated; that their people should emigrate; that western Europe has forfeited by failures it place as the testing economic ground for world trends. Whatever we give them, he says, we should not expect to get back. But there is a good place abroad for American investment. He mentioned "the young and growing countries of South and Central America and Canada." Loans to them "if properly applied", he said, "will result in material benefit to those countries and the United States." But loans to Europe cannot really help those countries because they cannot be repaid.

DIET AND HEALTH

It May Not Be Indigestion

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

IT is estimated that about half the people who consult the doctor do so because they think they are suffering from indigestion. What they do not realize is that one out of every five cases of so-called indigestion is due to gallbladder infections and gallstones.

This disorder occurs three times as often among women as among men. Though it may be present much earlier, it usually does not begin to produce symptoms—pain, indigestion and the like—until after the patient is past 40 years of age. However, cases of gallstones have been reported in a child as young as seven.

Severe Symptoms

Gallbladder disease may flare up suddenly with very severe symptoms or it may cause a milder discomfort over long periods of time. When it occurs, the first thing the doctor needs to know is whether or not operation is necessary.

According to Drs. William Bates and D. C. Emmerich of Philadelphia, there are certain symptoms which indicate unmistakably that gallbladder disease is present, and that an operation with removal of the gallbladder is required. These include attacks of biliary colic, which means that there are attacks of unusually severe pain in the right upper part of the abdomen, extending through to the back, belching, sickness to the stomach and vomiting usually, but not always, accompany the pain, along with chills, fever and an increase in the number of white cells in the blood.

Following the attack there may be some tenderness in the region of the gallbladder, with excessive amounts of gas in the bowel and a feeling of fullness after eating. Of course, when such attacks occur, an X-ray of the gallbladder should be taken which may either show the presence of stones in the gallbladder or that the gallbladder is not working as it should.

A mild form of gallbladder disease is known as acute catarrhal cholecystitis. This is an inflammation of the gallbladder which almost always defies recognition because the symptoms are neither severe nor clear-cut. This condition comes on gradually with some sickness to the stomach, slight fever and some pain in the right upper part of the abdomen. Jaundice, or yellowish-green discoloration of the skin, may or may not be present.

Gallbladder inflammation may be a chronic or long-continued condition. In chronic cholecystitis the gallbladder does not empty itself as it should, and this produces symptoms of indigestion or dyspepsia. This disorder is much more difficult to diagnose than acute inflammation of the gallbladder.

When a person thinks he has indigestion he should, of course, have a careful study made to determine whether or not the condition is due to gallbladder disease. Then either medical or surgical treatment can be carried out. The treatment used depends on the type of gallbladder trouble present.

I have outlined a suggested diet of instructions which may be helpful in following the physician's advice. I shall be glad to send this information to those who write to me, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. Names will not be used.

CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX

HERCULE POIROT, enjoying a mid-morning cup of chocolate, was interrupted by the ringing of the telephone. He got up and lifted the receiver.

"M. Poirot?"

"Lady Angkatell?"

"How nice of you to know my voice. Am I disturbing you?"

"But not at all. You are, I hope, none the worse for the distressing events of yesterday?"

"No, indeed. Distressing, as you say, but one feels, I find, quite detached. I know you in any way I can, I said to Inspector Grange. He seems rather a bewildered sort of person, but methodical.

"Motive seems so important to policemen," she went on. "Talking of hospital nurses just now, I believe that John Christow—a nurse with red hair and an upturned nose—quite attractive. But, of course, it was a long time ago and the police might not be interested. One doesn't really know how much poor Gerda had to put up with. She is the loyal type, don't you think? Or possibly she believes what is told her. I think if one has not a great deal of intelligence, it is wise to do that."

Quite suddenly, Lady Angkatell flung open the study door and ushered Poirot in, crying brightly, "Here is M. Poirot." She swept around him, shut the door, and Inspector Grange and Gudgeon were sitting by the desk. A young man with a notebook was in a corner. Gudgeon rose respectfully to his feet.

Poirot hastened into apologies. "I retire immediately. I assure you I had no idea that Lady Angkatell—"

"No, no, you wouldn't have," Grange's mustache looked more pessimistic than ever this morning. Perhaps, thought Poirot, fascinated by Lady Angkatell's recent sketch of Grange, there has been too much cleaning or perhaps a Benares table has been purchased so that the good inspector he really cannot have space to move.

Angrily he dismissed these thoughts. Inspector Grange's clean but overcast face, his wife, his boys and their addition to Meccano were all arguments of Lady Angkatell's busy brain.

But the vividness with which they assumed concrete reality interested him. It was quite an accomplishment.

"Sit down, M. Poirot," said Grange. "There's something I want to ask you about, and I've nearly finished here."

He turned his attention back to Gudgeon, who deferentially and almost under protest resumed his seat and turned an expressionless face toward his interlocutor.

"And that's all you can remember?"

"Yes, sir. Everything, sir, was very much as usual. There was no unpleasantness of any kind."

"There's a fact thing—out in that summer house by the pool. Which of the ladies did it belong to?"

"Are you referring, sir, to a cape of platinum fox? I noticed it yesterday when I took out the glasses to the pavilion. But it is not the property of anyone in this house, sir."

"Whose is it, then?"

"It might possibly belong to Miss Gray, sir. Miss Veronica Gray, the motion picture actress."

spotless might be sometimes depressing—like soap on hospital nurses' faces. Quite a shine! But that is more abroad where things lag behind—in London nursing homes they have lots of powder and really—vivid lipstick. But I was saying, M. Poirot, that you really must come to lunch properly when all this ridiculous business is over."

"You are very kind."

"I do not mind the police myself," said Lady Angkatell. "I really find it all quite interesting. Do let me help you in any way I can," I said to Inspector Grange. He seems rather a bewildered sort of person, but methodical.

"Motive seems so important to policemen," she went on. "Talking of hospital nurses just now, I believe that John Christow—a nurse with red hair and an upturned nose—quite attractive. "Whose is it, then?"

"It might possibly belong to Miss Gray, sir. Miss Veronica Gray, the motion picture actress."

Suddenly opening his eyes, which had been half closed, Hercule Poirot demanded with irresistible curiosity: "Do your boys play with Meccano?"

"Eh, what?" Inspector Grange came back from a frowning reverie to stare at Poirot. "Why, what on earth? As a matter of fact, yes, a bit young—but I was thinking of giving Teddy a Meccano set for Christmas? What made you ask?"

Poirot shook his head. "What made Lady Angkatell dangerous, he thought, was the fact that those intuitive wild guesses of hers might often be right. . . . With a careless (seemingly careless) word she built up a picture—and if part of the picture was right, wouldn't you, in spite of yourself, believe in the other half of the picture?"

PICTURES WITH CARDS

AS A MILLET or Rembrandt paints pictures with a brush, and a Shakespeare or Longfellow creates them with words, so can an artist at the bridge table produce them with cards. In many a situation he can make an opponent see the missing cards as being essential differences of any kind. He fabricates causes the opponent to act in such a way that results are achieved which would have been impossible except for his artistry.

He took the club lead to the Q with the A and immediately returned the spade Q. When East saw that, he decided South was trying to force out the A in order to make the K a dummy entry. East studied before playing to that trick, while South's heart palpitated. Then East reckoned that the club 8 lead from West was probably the "top of nothing," perhaps the 8-7, with South originally holding the A-K-J-9-6, and that West held a bunch of cards in the red suits.

So East finally elected to play the 8 on the spade Q and hold the A-J as a tenace over the K. South thereupon ran seven more tricks to make game. Don't argue that East proved himself glibly by his reading which made him fall for the stratagem. The point here is that South could not make his contract unless East would succumb, so he deserved credit for tempting East.

Your Week-End Question
Can you imagine a deal in which a grand slam can be made at any of three suits by one side or the other, and yet, by sane bidding, gets into a small slam in the only suit which cannot produce the grand slam?

Mrs. Long Hostess For Meeting Of Circleville WCTU

Mrs. Ralph Long was hostess Friday afternoon in her home on East Franklin street, for the regular meeting of members of Circleville W.C.T.U. Mrs. Lawrence Warner, president, opened the meeting and presided during the business session. In union the group read the Crusade psalm.

An editorial concerning the repeal of the liquor law for selling liquor near fair grounds was read by the hostess. She quoted various statements that were made at the W.C.T.U. national convention recently held at Asbury Park, New Jersey. She read in part what Mrs. D. Leigh Colvin, national president said, "one-fourth of the United States is now dry under the local option act. People are getting disgusted with loss of life caused by drunken drivers. Eventually as the revolt spreads, entire states will go dry—ultimately the nation."

Mrs. J. O. Eagleson presented a few of the highlights from the convention. She read excerpts from the "Union Signal", and added a few comments. Mrs. Long served a buffet salad course during the social hours.

Mrs. Turner Hostess For Club Meeting

Eight members of the Magic Sewing club gathered in the home of Mrs. Wendell Turner, Pleasant street, for their regular meeting. Young guests for the evening were Norma Ruth Troutman and Mary Lou Skaggs.

During a brief business session the club decided to have their annual family picnic supper next Friday at 6 p. m. in Ted Lewis park.

Euchre was the diversion of the evening. High scores were held and prizes awarded to Mrs. Noble Barr and Mrs. Russell Skaggs.

As the members were seated at small tables the hostess served a salad course. Low bowls of pansies centered each table. Next regular meeting of the club will be held at the home of Mrs. John Grubb, South Pickaway street.

Mrs. Orton Reidy, Columbus, the former Miss Elizabeth Abernethy, Circleville resident, spent Friday and Saturday, here visiting with relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Stoddard Raper and son Tod, Columbus, are weekend guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. James I. Smith, and family, South Court street.

Troy White and Fred Moeller, Circleville, and Max Friedman, Columbus, are in Canada on a fishing trip.

Mr. and Mrs. George Hitler and three children, Grand Rapids, Michigan, have been guests of his parents, Dr. G. L. Hitler and Mrs. Hitler, West Mound street.

Household Hints

Cooks have argued for years as to when to salt and pepper meat, before or after cooking. Cookery scientists say it makes very little difference in results. Add the seasoning when it is convenient. Salt does draw out the juice from meat and for this reason it should not be added until the meat is ready to cook unless the meat is sprinkled with flour after salting.

If you are going to do some spring painting, be sure the surface of the object to be painted is clean and smooth. Remove old paint or varnish in poor condition with paint remover. Smooth rough surfaces with sand paper. Be sure your paint brush is free from loose hairs. Slip the bristles across your hand, dip tip into paint can and brush it back and forth on heavy paper to work out loose hairs.

Dry cleaning fluid will remove chewing gum, candle drippings and dirt from lightly soiled upholstery fabrics, wax from polishing brushes, and old coats of wax that have become impregnated with dirt.

GAUDIO JOINS BROWNS
CLEVELAND, July 26—The champion Cleveland Browns of the All-America football conference today signed two more players, bringing to 47 the number of men who will report next Tuesday at the Bowling Green, O., training camp. The new acquisitions are Guard Bob Gaudio of Ohio State and end Marshall Shurnas of Missouri.

The champion St. Louis Cardinals, now climbing ahead by leaps and bounds, made 15 hits and took second place away from Boston by beating the Braves, 5 to 1. The victory was particularly heartening to the Cards because Howie Pollet, their stylish southpaw, bore down in the pinches with all of his former effectiveness.

HARRY TAYLOR, Brooklyn's current "stopper," subdued Pittsburgh, 4 to 1. The Dodgers won the game in the first inning at the expense of Mel Queen, Yankee castoff.

Brooklyn's margin over St. Louis is only 5 1/2 games, as a result of the action of National League President Ford Frick in ordering a replay of last Sunday's disputed game between the Dodgers and the Cards.

The New York Giants dropped their fourth straight game in the West when they lost to Chicago, 5 to 3. A pinch single by Dom Dallessandro ruined Floppy Hartung. John Mize poled a three-run homer, the 29th of the season for the current home run king.

BIG CHIEF Allie Reynolds became the leading pitcher of the New York Yankees, numerically, when he coasted to a 12-to-4 win over the Chicago White Sox behind a 14-hit barrage for his 12th win of the season.

Boston's Red Sox took over second place outslugging the St. Louis Browns, 7 to 6. Ted Williams of the Sox and Jeff Heath of the Browns, waging a hot fight for the American League home run crown, each hit his 20th homer of the campaign.

Relief pitcher Harry Dorish of Boston won his own game with a squeeze bunt in the fifth.

Detroit dropped to third place by losing to the Athletics, 9 to 5.

Mickey Haefner, who has been going great guns for the Senators lately, held Cleveland to only three hits and won in a romp, 5 to 1.

BLACKIE AIMS AT MARQUARD'S VICTORY STRING

Red Ace Has Trouble Getting 16th Straight; Tribe Beaten Again

NEW YORK, July 26—Ewell Blackwell of Cincinnati, with 16 straight wins under his belt, took dead aim at Rube Marquard's 1912 modern major league record of 19 consecutive victories. Already he has equalled the American League record.

"The Eel," who has won 18 games this season as against only two defeats, also has a dandy chance to win 30 games and become the National League's most remarkable pitcher since Dizzy Dean won 30 games in 1934. And in earned-run effectiveness, he may prove the greatest since Carl Hubbell registered a 1.66 average in 1933, although he found the going rough against the Phils last night.

Blackwell's run already is better than Marquard's in two respects. His streak includes a no-hitter among five shut-outs (Marquard had only one), and Ewell has finished all of his games during his streak while the Rube had to be lifted three times.

Furthermore, one of Marquard's wins was a relief job that lasted only 2 1/2 innings.

BLACKWELL'S 5-to-4 win over the Phillies last night, for his 16th straight win, was a close call and a major hurdle because the Phils have been giving him trouble all season. This time, The Eel took four full days of rest, instead of the usual three, to make sure of keeping his streak intact, but at that the Phils kept pecking away at Ewell and had him worried right up to the final gong.

The Quakers nicked the human string bean for no less than 13 hits and he knew he had been in a ball game when the last towel was lifted.

The champion St. Louis Cardinals, now climbing ahead by leaps and bounds, made 15 hits and took second place away from Boston by beating the Braves, 5 to 1. The victory was particularly heartening to the Cards because Howie Pollet, their stylish southpaw, bore down in the pinches with all of his former effectiveness.

UNKNOWN HOLDS LEAD IN GOLF TOURNEY PLAY

COLUMBUS, O., July 26—A rosy-visaged gang of "name" golfers set out today on a familiar chapter of the Columbus invitational open version of their most familiar skit.

The drama might be entitled "the chase" and involved this time a slender, soft-spoken virtually unknown Tennessee named Tom Wright. The 31-year-old Wright led the field into the second round today with a red-hot 67.

Seek Missing GI

REPORTEDLY assigned to highly important development work, Cpl. Harvey E. "Gene" Whitacre (above), who disappeared from the Sandia, N. M., special weapons project, is being sought by Army intelligence officers and the FBI. A bloodstained cap and shirt, identified as Whitacre's, was found at Albuquerque. His home is in Kokomo, Ind. (International) ambition was to be a concert baritone.

The haunting theme whistled by "The Whistler" Wednesday nights was composed by Wilbur Hatch, the show's musical conductor.

Ralph Locke, who portrays "Papa David" on "Life Can Be Beautiful," is an expert dialectician. He can speak English with ten different, equally authentic foreign accents.

Meredith Willson, heard on "Showroom" program, dictated a 28,000-word book over the telephone to his secretary!

Peter Lorre, star of the Thursday night dramatic thriller, dresses for comfort in slacks and a crew shirt when he faces the "mike."

Wally Fowler, leader of the Oak Ridge Quartet on "Grand Ole Opry," got the inspiration for his composition, "I'm Sending You Red Roses," when he was a 15-year-old helper to a Rome, Ga. florist.

Joseph Julian, who portrays the role of Commissioner Bill Grant on the Tuesday night show, "Call the Police," has a play entitled "Presento" making the rounds of the Broadway producers. Based on the experiences of a GI in Japan, it was written by Julian in Japan shortly after VJ Day.

Barbara Bell Wright, who is heard as "Bertha Neely" on the week-day "Perry Mason" serial, is a distant relative of the late novelist, Harold Bell Wright. Although she has been acting on Broadway and in stock companies for more than five years, Barbara has been in radio only since last November. She's had parts on such shows as "Rosemary," "My True Story," and "Dorothy Dix," and she joined the "Perry Mason" cast in March. She was last seen on Broadway in a play called "Three Is a Family."

Arthur ("Dagwood") Lake, star of Sunday "Blondie" show, has been rehearsing the nation's leading racehorse jockeys, now appearing at Hollywood Park, for their annual Jockey-Guild welfare fund show at Earl Carroll's theater restaurant, in Hollywood. "Dagwood" is directing their blackouts. A roofing crew in Spokane, Washington, had a fourth of a new roof on when they learned it was the wrong house, but they finished the job without cost to the owner.

Liquor Restrictions In Fair Area Does Not Affect County

PICKAWAY SHOW TO OPEN AFTER STATUTE DIES

State Authorities Announce Enforcements Of Old Law Up To Local Men

Pickaway County Fair, which is to be staged for four days, Sept. 10-13 at the fair grounds just northeast of Circleville, will be free from restrictions imposed by Ohio's 89-year-old law banning the sale of intoxicants near a County Fair.

However, the state liquor store in Circleville will be closed during the four-day County Fair by order of the state liquor department.

The ancient law forbidding the sale of liquor within two miles of an agricultural fair or exposition will die on Sept. 8—just two days prior to the opening of the Pickaway County Fair.

COLUMBUS law-enforcement officials said Saturday that the old law will be enforced, however, during the 1947 Ohio State Fair to be held there Aug. 23-29 because the law will still be in effect on those dates.

Enforcement of the about-to-die, but still living statute is strictly a problem for local authorities.

Lt. Floyd C. Moon, acting enforcement chief of the state liquor department, outlined that thesis in declaring that the liquor department's concern with the problem would end with closing of its own stores in such areas during fairs.

MOON REMINDED local governments that they receive more than six million dollars annually in permit fee refunds to enforce liquor laws and added:

"The purpose of the legislation nearly a century ago obviously was to give local communities authority to govern and control the sale of liquor in the

Football and Baseball Schools Planned At Park

After several postponements due to rain and floods, the Summer recreation program's sucker hunt was held Friday at Ted Lewis park with about 80 children present.

Next week's activities will feature a football school and baseball school. Instructions in the fundamentals of each sport will be given. Football class will meet on Monday and Tuesday at 4 p. m. while the baseball group will meet Wednesday at 2 p. m. and Thursday at 3 p. m.

Friday's special event will be a baseball rodeo which will feature various softball skills. There will be separate events for boys and girls, starting at 2 p. m.

Another Friday event is the badminton tournament at 10 a. m.

OTHER EVENTS listed for next week are a cleanup hunt at 1 p. m. Monday; girls softball Tuesday and Thursday at 2 p. m.; girls handicraft Tuesday and Thursday at 10 a. m.; boys handicraft Monday and Wednesday at 1:30 p. m.

On hot days "keep-out-of-the-sun" games are being featured in the early afternoon hours.

THIS WEEK'S boys softball league was featured by upset victories and a "no-hitter" game vicinity of fairs and agricultural displays.

"Until the date upon which the law becomes ineffective (Sept. 8) that authority will remain with local enforcement officials. It is strictly up to them on a home rule basis."

LIQUOR DIRECTOR Dale Dunton previously had announced that the state's own stores within a two-mile radius of fairs would be closed during the fairs regardless of action taken by local authorities regarding permit holders.

The last session of the legislature repealed the old statute, but since the measure did not include an emergency clause, it does not take effect until Sept. 8.

MODERN DEFENSE CONSIDERS THIS TOO!

With America more alert than ever to the need for conserving all resources, it is wise to weigh the hazards of lightning against the modest cost of thoroughly reliable protection.

Lightning can—and often enough does—cause practically total loss of buildings. It can cause temporary shutdowns. Now and then it even takes lives.

Lightning is unpredictable. You never know when it will strike, or with what results. Only two things are certain, lightning starts more fires than almost any other source (records of the National Board of Fire Underwriters prove it).

Why not at least investigate West Dodd systems? Details on request.

X MARKS THE SPOT!

Yes—X marks the spot where more than 2,000 people died and over 70,000 were injured last year when automobile drivers challenged the iron horses of the rails—and lost.

When you approach a railroad crossing, you are entering the railroad's right-of-way. To save you from harm, gates are lowered or automatic signalling devices, bells and blinking lights warn of approaching trains. The engineer blows a warning blast, rings his bell. That's the most the railroad can do. The rest is up to you.

The Stop—Look—and Listen sign means what it says. Stop—look both ways—and always listen. If a train is just clearing the crossing, wait—don't hurry across, there may be a hidden train coming from the opposite direction. And when you do cross, keep going. Don't shift gears on the tracks, you may stall.

Take the few extra seconds needed to assure a safe crossing. Don't let X mark the spot where you failed to be careful.
